

THIS BRONCHO BUSTER

Mrs. Matilda Lopez Has Tamed More Than Three Thousand Man-Killing Beasts.

DOES NOT WEAR TROUSERS.

Dangerous Practice the Business of Her Life, as Her Husband is an Invalid and, Besides, She Likes the Fun.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Women who ride in more or less regulation along the carefully laid paths in city parks on the broad backs of tranquil equines, would find something terrifying in the thrilling routine of "broncho busting" by one of their own sex.

There are hundreds—yes, thousands—of men who are doing that trick, but as for women—that's a different matter. To be sure, one may meet in the West plenty of good horsewomen—women who ride with some vicious horses, but a genuine woman "broncho buster" who seeks her living in that way is an exception.

The tenderfoot has learned by story and sometimes by actual observation that the "broncho buster" is an athlete who, when he gets a rope around his victim, is willing to use it and there to sign an agreement that the brute is as good as conquered.

With the bridle and saddle on and the "buster" on his back the horse may do as he likes. He may have four hoofs or none on the ground.

He may elevate his spine and back and turn and rear and jump and wiggle and attempt back and front somersaults all to no purpose. The man on his back gives him the spur and the quirt and thrusts his strong legs back and down and absolutely refuses to be thrown off.

In the meantime the rowels are being heeled in the animal's flanks and his head is being kept up by jerks from strong arms. All this is easy for the man.

It is different with a woman, though. For this reason there are few women "broncho busters." The exception is Mrs. Matilda Lopez, the wife of Phil Lopez of Nevada, who is pretty good at the business himself and makes it a habit of doing it as if he were a woman instead of a man.

In Nevada they look upon Mrs. Lopez as the queen of the "broncho busters," and well they may, for she has a record of having made more than 3,000 man-killing beasts as gentle as milk cows. Of course, Mrs. Lopez has her own methods. All experts on the subject would tell you that she is a real expert.

There is nothing unusual at all about it, she says modestly. "It is the way I earn my living. I suppose I have some method, but really I don't know what it is. I was too young when I began taming horses to reason out the why and the wherefore. All I know is that I have never yet mounted a horse that I haven't not break and that I have never been seriously injured by a horse, and furthermore that I am not afraid of any horse."

RODE AS A CHILD.
When Mrs. Lopez rode her first horse she was 4 years old. At the age of 10 she was considered a good enough horsewoman to round up a bunch of wild cattle along with the best men in the county. Later on she became the wife of Phil Lopez, who knew a thing or two about the business, and she rode with him in order to assist in the business—breaking untamed horses and taming wild ones. That was the real secret of her success.

"It is just this: When a man or a woman mounts a wild horse it is certain that one of the things he is going to do is to hold the reins. That means he is going to be in a position to be thrown off. I always let the horse do that part of it."

Most women when they mount a vicious horse stir themselves either in man's apparel or at least in man's mind, but not Mrs. Lopez. She is just riding in a skirt, but never astride.

When all is ready she jumps nimbly on the man's saddle and sits on the way. It is well the business begins, with only her left foot in the stirrup, the reins held rather loosely in her left hand and a whip in her right. Somehow or other she always manages to retain her seat and the animal always obeys the man's commands.

They had a little frigate celebration not long ago down at Merced, where a body for miles around was invited to bring on their very untamed horses and see a woman "bust" them. Some of the animals that had to be dragged into the grounds with ropes had records that would make the most prominent members of the "rogue" gallery blush with envy.

When Mrs. Lopez looked over the outfit and was told of the list of former "busts," she simply smiled.

The first horse that was brought out had the reputation of being an all-around criminal and positively the worst brute in the county. Phil Lopez started to get on him.

"Ladies first, please," said his wife, and she jumped alight to the saddle. "Let go," she cried and the animal was off. For the next fifteen minutes there was an exhibition of the most experienced "busts" had never seen. The big horse just began to buck as no horse ever bucked before. Mrs. Lopez had her right knee over the pommel and her left foot through the stirrup just above the stirrup and the way she put the spurs into that beast's flanks caused the quilt was an object lesson to the advocates of corporal punishment.

CONQUERED FIERCE ANIMAL.
The big horse plunged and pranced. Sometimes he was on his fore legs, sometimes on his hind and sometimes in the air. In a few minutes he had traveled two miles, but not as the crowd of old timers said it was one of the finest cases of bucking ever seen, but every time he tried one of his infamous tricks he met with opposition.

If he tried to get down on all four his head was bronco-busted and the quirt was applied to his flanks in a forceful manner that compelled him to take to a gallop.

The rider swung backward and forward, but she never bounced in the saddle and all the time was cool as a piece of artificial ice. For half an hour these tactics were kept up, then the former untamed animal was fastened on his pointed ears from alongside of his neck and dropped his head, while his once fierce eyes became as mild as a sheep's and his countenance took on the look of one about to ask another's pardon.

Then Mrs. Lopez swung cleverly from the saddle, and, tossing the bridle to the man who had been in mortal fear of the animal for five years, remarked quietly:

"He will be a real good horse now. You may ride him home with perfect safety." Phil Lopez rode a few horses after that till his wife protested that that would be about enough for an invalid to undertake in one day and then finished up the rest of them herself.

When the last "rambunctious" one had been subdued she thanked the men for their entertainment, remarking that she had had a very pleasant afternoon and the men, well, they meandered out of the pen, leading their tame horses down the road and looking very grateful, but it must be confessed, a bit crestfallen.
